It's no secret that South Jersey has some of the top doctors in the country—physicians who are willing to go the extra mile for their patients. This month, we take a look at some of the best health-care professionals that are helping area women live happy and healthy lives. From those that deliver babies to surgeons faced with the harsh reality of cancer, these doctors are worthy of the recognition. We've partnered with third-party medical information provider Arvo to find the cream of the crop. Our readers also had their say, voting for their recommendations online. Read on to see who made the list and meet 10 of these leaders in medicine.

Arvo
MEDICAL INFORMATION

The name we turned to for this health-based company that uses data and intelligence and medical professionals. Arvo's proprietary algorithm rates all doctors on a 10-point scale, factoring in their endorsements as well as experience, education, training, research, publishing and awards. These factors, along with regularly updated feedback from thousands of patients from numerous sources, form a complex, multi-part algorithm. (As of press time, all the physicians on our list were certified specialists in their field by their respective medical licensing boards.) While the list is thought-provoking, it's not surprising and certainly doesn't mean great doctors don't exist on the list. They just didn't have enough votes to get into the spotlight. Research that helps the doctor who is right for you.
