PRESENTS: SERGIO RUBINSTEIN, D.D.S

“MASTERING THE ART AND SCIENCE OF IMPLANT DENTISTRY”

Dr. Sergio Rubinstein received his dental degree in 1980 from the Universidad Tecnologica de Mexico. From 1980-82, he completed a specialty program in Periodontal-Prosthesis at the University of Illinois where he taught until 1992. He invented the Rubinstein-Hoshi Abutment, one-piece screw and angle prosthetic abutment to correct misaligned implants. He has lectured nationally, internationally and has published several articles on Adhesive Dentistry and Implant-Prosthodontics. His practice, Oral Rehabilitation Center is located in Skokie, IL.

Course Objectives

- Visualizing from the onset the aesthetics of the final prosthesis: A comprehensive review of implant design and abutment options to understand how to achieve predictable outcomes to meet both the functional and esthetic expectations of your patients.
- Understanding criteria for abutment selection for the final prosthesis, stock and custom components: Focusing on the products and procedures available to help bring simplicity and reliability to the restorative process.
- Achieving and maintaining predictable, consistent bone preservation: Success is achieved by treatment planning in a reverse pathway and working from an aesthetic goal towards a healthy, supportive foundation.
