

My love affair with beauty demands only one element... truth. I can't tell you how many numerous gels, creams, and elixirs I've tried that don't hold true. Botox never worked for me, besides the thought of injecting small amounts of toxic botulism into my body feels creepy. Laser peels have become too dangerous. Plastic surgeons promise a younger more beautiful look, but knives and needles frighten me. Was this too good to be true? Would it hurt? Would I like the results? My brain current cracked with questions.

"We call it the Nano-Perfector," says Debby Wright, proprietor of the Four Seasons Dental and Med Spa, located on West Flamingo in Las Vegas. The technology and science was formulated at London University in 1992. The founders are Gerry Pollock, the co-inventor of the first pacemaker and pioneer in Ultra Violet Light, and David Greenway, former Director of Estee Lauder.

"It operates on a very specific micro-current," explains Wright. "It works because the human body is made of electrical charges. As we age, our cells don't hold the same charge. The electrical impulses from the Perfector machine reenergize the formation of healthy, newly charged, vibrant cells. The current also is designed to eliminate free radicals. It's the electrical transfer of energy to the mitochondria of the cell that detoxifies, cleanses and regenerates skin cells. This creates new cells that are younger, more radiant and resilient."

She further explained that the treatment was non-invasive and pain-free. "Sometimes it's called the anti-gravity face lift," Debby smiled. My shoulders relaxed and my worry lines started to soften with this piece of good news. For a month and a half, I went for the treatments, two times a week. The first session lasted an hour and a half. Crystal, a vibrantly beautiful brunette aesthetician, with sparkling eyes graciously accompanied me back to the treatment room. Her soft reassuring voice explained the science behind their promise.

I looked at the small white machine that promised to transfer electrical impulses that would make my skin younger. The furrows on my forehead grew deeper in disbelief.

Crystal gathered the four shiny silver wands that contained the scientific secret for younger skin. I suspended my doubts as she bathed my face and neck with medical grade deeply hydrating serums. It felt cool and tingly. "This first program stimulates the proliferation of blood cells carrying oxygen to the tissues as well as nourishing the skin. It removes the free radicals from your skin. Free radicals are the major cause for the aging of the skin. These treatments are also ideal for dull skin, poor circulation, dark circles, puffiness around the eyes, and skin damaged by smoke and dehydrating drinks," she didn't falter and I liked what I was hearing.

"Everyone has a unique beauty embedded in the structure of their face, my job is to reawaken and revitalize your skin so that it reflects that beauty." Her artistic touch was reassuring. I didn't feel anything but a slight prickly sensation and fluttering lights as she worked around my eyes. Was it magic fairy dust?

The wands continued to do their work...regenerating skin cells, lifting, sculpting and rejuvenating. It began to use a higher range of nanoamperage that resonates with the biological signals of self-repair and renewal for the skin. The waveforms of the current fill in wrinkles, build muscle and lift. It also uses frequencies that are proven to increase collagen and build new tissue.

After the 90-minute treatment, I felt transported into an amazing peaceful place. Every muscle in my body was relaxed. But when I looked in the mirror, my eyes opened wide in amazement. My skin did have a new glow. The lines around my eyes were softer. My forehead looked lifted! My skin felt more resilient and smoother to the touch. I was radiant. "What an extraordinary facial!" I thought.

"Please say this will last," I begged.

"Most people need 10 sessions to see the long term effects. Drink two quarts of water within two hours of this session. It will help accelerate the natural flushing of your body's system. Stay away from dehydrating drinks for 72 hours. This will help your skin to continue to regenerate." Crystal looked pleased with her work.

I was given a list effective nutritionals with a detailed explanation of how they would support my skin's rejuvenation. "They can be purchased at Stay Healthy here in town," Debby stated. She then introduced me to a make-up that has anti-aging treatment with pigment. I purchased their medical grade products of collagen producing moisturizers and deep hydrating serums. Debby told me that these products were proven and tested in double blind studies. They were only available from a doctor's office. I began to realize this was a whole new world that only Hollywood and a fortunate few had explored.

I couldn't wait for my next session. With each week, I watched my face transform. I made sure that I took the nutritionals, used the serums, moisturizers and anti-aging treatment with pigment instead of make-up. I drank lots of water and followed their unique protocol. The results were priceless! My droopy, lizard eyes became smooth and lifted. My crow's feet disappeared. My pores have shrunk. The deep lines on my forehead, cheeks and chin are softened. My puffy eyes and dark circles have vanished. My skin is vibrant and aglow. My facial muscles have lifted and tightened. My eyes appear bigger and brighter. I even changed the color of the anti-aging treatment make-up because my new skin had a rosier glow.. I feel amazing!

"Wow" is the overwhelming response. My daughter, with flawless skin said, "Mom, this is the best you've ever looked!" My husband keeps staring at me and openly says, "You look beautiful!" (He wants to try it too.) My girlfriends' consensus is 10-12 years younger. One asked if I'd had a face lift. Me? I'm ecstatic! I love that beauty is for everyone!

Four Seasons kept their promise. It's not hocus pocus. It's a true scientific miracle. Truth is beauty. Every time I visit the Spa, there's a new evolutionary product that makes me look better and feel younger. I wonder what they'll show me next.

Janice Marie Wilson M.A. is a Key Note Speaker, Lecturer, Personal Coach, freelance writer, Communications Advisor, and Spa Editor for Jetsetters Magazine. She conducts worldwide workshops on Beauty, Goodness and Well Being. She is the author of THE GOODNESS EXPERIENCE.

WWW.THEJANICEMARIE.COM

702.233.8305

For more information on NANO Treatments contact:

Four Seasons Dental Spa
702.309.4600
James Wright DDS
Debby Wright
ithinkikan@aol.com

BEAUTY... IS FOR EVERYONE